After... Call me Geraldine, says the new-look doctor

Ex-racing driver GP astounds his patients

FAMILY DOCTOR Jeremy Bean has astounded his patients by dressing as a woman.

he said. "But I won't be changing my doctor. He's the best in the area."

Dr. Bean also works at a clinic in Margate for people with broken limbs.

Last week he went on duty wearing a black velvet jacket, maroon skirt and high-heeled shoes. He wore a delicate pendant over a grey sweater.

A former Formula III racing driver, Dr. Bean is also said to own the Parade Garage in Oscar Road, Broadstairs.

The Medical Directory lists him as a Member of the Royal College of Surgeons and a Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians.

He formerly worked at London's Charing Cross Hospital and is listed as clinical assistant in orthopaedics in the Thanet area of Kent.

He is a Member of the British Medical Association. Neither the 61-plus doctor nor his wife would comment.

He's taking surgery in skirt and blouse and has asked his patients to call him Geraldine.

said. I couldn't say anything. I had gone to see him about a personal problem, but when I set eyes on him, I just couldn't bring myself to discuss it.

"My family and I have been going to him for years, but I would never go back there again."

Loyal

But another patient — a man — said: "It doesn't bother me what sex my doctor is, as long as he knows his job."

"As far as I'm concerned Jerry is an excellent doctor — one of the best — and that's that."

The loyal patient said that

Dr. Bean was dressed in slacks and sandals and "looked a bit effeminate" when he last visited him several months ago.

The man said that the doctor suddenly told him: "I thought you ought to know that I'm going over to the other side."

The patient went on: "He said that he'd never had homosexual tendencies, but for some time he had felt he wanted to be a woman."

"He told me he wanted the patients to call him Geraldine. At one time there was a notice on the surgery wall to this effect."

At that visit, according to the patient, the doctor revealed his intention to have a sex-change operation.

Make-up

Another male patient who won't be changing his doctor said he had heard about Dr. Bean's new image before he saw him in a blouse at the surgery.

He had several sparkling rings on his fingers, had a woman's hair style and may have been wearing make-up."
