

UNDER FALSE COLORS.

A Colored Man Who Has Successfully Passed as a Woman for Twenty-seven Years—His Extraordinary Testimony Before a Congressional Committee, and Its Effect.

From the Memphis Appeal. Frances Thompson (colored), better known as "Ann Critchley," who for the past twenty-seven years has gone about in female garb, was arrested yesterday, and after medical examination was pronounced a member of the male sex.

It would be impossible to estimate the amount of damage done by the black brute. There is no knowing what amount of corruption he has sowed and sown, not only among the women, both white and black, he has ruined. He has played the part of a go-between and procurer, and has been a most successful and wholesale deceiver.

Q. How were you injured? A. I am a cripple. [The witness used crutches.] I have a cancer in my foot. Q. Where were you here during the late riots? A. Yes, sir.

Q. State what you know or saw of the rioting? A. Between 1 and 2 o'clock, Tuesday night, seven men, two of whom were policemen, came to my house; I knew them by their names; they were all Irishmen; they said they had come to supper, and asked me to get some coffee and biscuits; I made them some biscuit and some strong coffee, and they all sat down to eat and drink.

Q. Did they take anything else? A. They took three silk dresses of mine, and a right one of Lucy's; they put the things into two pillow slips and took them away. Q. How long did the men stay? A. They were there for nearly four hours; it was getting near day when they left.

Q. Did they know any of them? A. They were all Irishmen; there was not an American among them. Q. Did anything else take place? A. There were some quilts about that we had been making. They asked us what they were made of, and when we told them for any one they swore at us, and said the soldiers would never have on their beds, and took them away with the rest of the things.

FOR THE FRONT.

The Gallant 5th Leaves Fort Leavenworth for the Indian Campaign—The Best Known Indian Fighter, in Command.

Yesterday afternoon, at 4:30 o'clock, the special train of six engines, loaded with troops, steamed up to the Fort Depot, from the city, to convey the troops, which had been ordered to the front, to the mouth of the river, as far as their destination as they could go, over the line running out of Kansas.

After the troops had been loaded, the train was run out of the city, and the passenger coaches were run alongside the platform to await the coming of the soldiers, who were to be taken to the front at that time being reviewed on the parade grounds by GEN. N. A. MILES.

preparatory to embarkation. After the parade the six companies, bearing the regimental flag, and accompanied by their knapsacks, etc., marched from the fort to the depot, headed by their old favorite band, which cheered and played the "Star Spangled Banner" to the "Star Spangled Banner."

Every window of the cars was filled with waving hands, in which were handkerchiefs, hats and bouquets. Their farewell gestures and cheers were answered by the men on the platform, and the train, bearing many brave soldiers and gallant officers, was soon lost to view in the deep canyon overhanging the track beyond the depot.

The command consists of Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Major-General, commanding; Lieut. Col. Baldwin, Battalion Adjutant; Capt. F. H. Hathaway, Quartermaster; Lieut. T. M. Wood, Surgeon; and Dr. J. B. Barbour, Acting Assistant Surgeon, and six companies of the Fifth Infantry, and the various companies are commanded as follows: Company B—Capt. A. S. Bennett and Lieut. H. W. Wood.

Company E—Lieut. J. W. Pope commanding. Company F—Capt. Samuel Snyder and Lieut. E. L. Randall. Company G—Capt. S. Ovenshine and Lieut. T. F. Forbes. Company H—Col. E. Rice and Capt. C. E. Hergons.

Company K—Capt. Mason Carter and Lieut. J. W. Whitten. The expedition is fully equipped with everything that could be desired for the march, and men are all in fine condition. The train on which it left will run over the Kansas City, and will be followed by the "Iron Horse," where the men and baggage will be transferred to boats, which will convey them to the Indian country.

It is removed that Gainsborough's painting of the Duchess of Devonshire, out from its frame and stolen two months since, has been recovered. —William Clark, of Normal, Ill., was thrown from a horse, near Bloomington, yesterday, breaking his leg. —The Republican Central Committee of Arkansas has decided to hold the State Convention on August 10th.

A POISONED GLASS.

A Kansas Exhibitor at the Centennial Takes a Fatal Draught Given to Him by a Jealous Rival.

Coroner Goddard yesterday held an inquest in the case of J. M. Canfield, an exhibitor at the Centennial, who died suddenly, several days ago, from, it is alleged, the effects of poison. It occurred that on the evening of June 28 he went to the saloon on Elm avenue and Fort street, known as the "Fish House."

The women were present at the inquest, and attracted considerable attention, both by their dress and by their manner. The woman who seems to be the central figure in the tragedy, is a young woman of rather pretentious appearance, and of a rather repulsive, both in appearance and manner.

The women seemed deeply interested in the proceedings, and were very attentive. The woman who seems to be the central figure in the tragedy, is a young woman of rather pretentious appearance, and of a rather repulsive, both in appearance and manner.
