

Sex shocker for male 'clients'

HOOKER

By EDDIE ROWLEY

DUBLIN prostitute "Debbie" has a sex shocker this week for "her" male clients.

For the blond bombshell who struts "her" stuff in Fitzwilliam Square and Waterloo Road, confessed to SUNDAY WORLD: "I'm no lady."

"Debbie", who also uses the alias "Hazel", is 20-year-old Michael Joyce from Grangecon near Baltinglass, Co. Wicklow.

SUNDAY WORLD learned exclusively this week how Joyce has been masquerading as a female prostitute on Dublin streets — and performing sex services for unsuspecting men who pick him up.

Joyce also revealed how he posed as a female working in a city massage parlour and fooled the male clients who availed of the sex services he offered them.

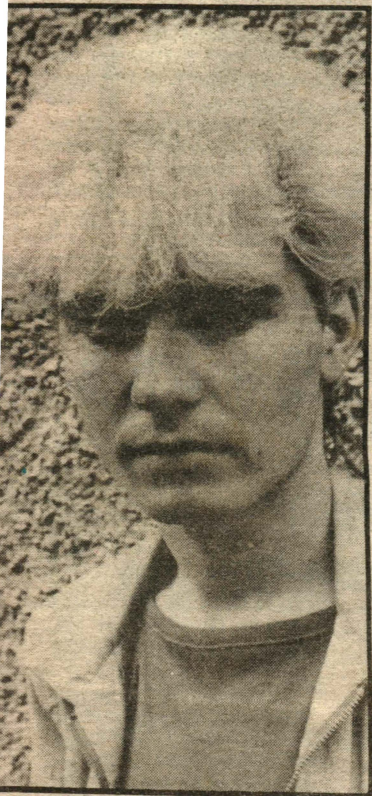

A homosexual, Joyce has also worked on the gay prostitution scene in Galway and Dublin during the past four to five years.

But he told me: "I prefer female prostitution — the money's better."

And the effeminate young man with the pansy step, who comes from a rural background, says he's now going to London to have a sex-change operation.

"I want to become a woman," Joyce revealed.

Dressed in a mini-skirt, with fishnet tights and a sexy top, the petite young man with the bleached-blond hair and make-up, says he has no problem picking up male clients when he flaunts his wares with the female prostitutes in Dublin's infamous Fitzwilliam Square and Waterloo Road.

Said Joyce: "The men never suspect a thing. I look so good and I have such a sexy wriggle that they go for me in a big way. I pick up as many, if not more male clients as the real women on the beat."

He has been soliciting with the "ladies of the night" on Dublin streets for the last six months and says: "A number of the female prostitutes were aware that I'm a male and treated me as a joke until they saw how much biz I was turning over. Then I got the cold shoulder from them."

The men, mostly elderly, are always satisfied, he says, with the "service" he gives them.

Said Joyce: "Obviously I can't give them the full works. I only do hand jobs and oral sex. It's easy money; I can get anything from £15 for a hand job to up to £30 for the latter."

Joyce admitted that, to their horror, some clients did discover the shocking truth about the attractive blond they picked up for a quick thrill.

"Some of the men, who got over excited as we messed about in their car, grabbed me where they shouldn't and found more than they bargained for. They just sat there in shock when they realised it was a man who was doing the tricks for them."

But there was one male client who didn't bat an eyelid and coolly remarked to Joyce: "Well, you look so well, what the hell."

He says his clients were "usually the older generation; a lot of them were businessmen who weren't satisfied with what they got from their wives or whose wives had gone cold on them."

For the last five weeks the bizarre Wicklowman has been working as a female in a massage parlour on Dublin's southside.

Said Joyce: "I offer men the usual extras that are provided in Dublin sex-for-sale massage parlours, such as hand relief and oral sex. But when they ask me to strip for them I have to make an excuse and explain that I draw the line at that."

He says he has been making £60 to £100 a day working in the massage parlour — after handing over the £10 basic fee for each client to his boss.

"My boss, who is female, is aware that I'm a male. She also works in the massage parlour and does the full trick for clients.

"I'm allowed to keep the money I make doing extras. I charge £10 to £15 for a hand job and £15 to £30 for oral sex."
