MANGO PRODUCTS

Affordable FTM Prostheses that work!

3 1/2" Pink Mango

Mango Products provides a complete line of prostheses for transmen, including the Mango, a combination packing and peeing prosthesis that is a revolutionary advance beyond other devices. Only the Mango features a receptacle tube that is designed specifically for the FTM anatomy, for maximum comfort and leak proof fit. It is available in 3 1/2 and 4 1/2 inch lengths, and comes in pink, coffee, and chocolate colors.

Our product line also includes the Mango 2 for guys who have had a metoidioplasty, the incredibly realistic Cyber cock for sex, and comfortable cotton harnesses for all of our prostheses.

Most of the items in our catalog have been designed and created by the owner of Mango Products, a transman who is a clinical psychologist. For us, these products are true anatomical prostheses, body parts that are crucial to our identity and our ability to function as men. We offer them with the hope that you will find them helpful in your life as a man and in your journey toward wholeness.

Prez Sez by Rabbi Levi Alter President FTMI

FTMI*International* takes great pride in announcing our election this December for our board of directors for the term beginning January 2008 through December 31, 2010. All members in good standing of FTMI*International* are encouraged to vote. The nomination statements of each candidate are published in this issue. The ByLaws of FTMI*International* state that the board shall have up to 15 members. We have 13 nominees, you may vote for as many as you choose, including all of them.

FTMI*International* is proud to announce that FTMI Ohio Dr. M. Edwards Walker Chapter President Jacob Nash was honored at Transgender Day of Remembrance with the Transgender Leader of the Year Award.

From the Chronicle

Cleveland--"Today is usually reserved simply as a day to mourn the loss of our everyday heroes--those gender-variant people who chose to stand up for what they felt, rather than hide behind society's norms," organizer Jake Nash told the crowd assembled for Cleveland's fourth commemoration of the Transgender Day of Remembrance.

"Remembering Our Dead" took people on a candle-lit march from the Cleveland LGBT Center to Cleveland Public Theater's Old Parish Hall venue a block away. A solid wall of marchers carried candles and placard memorializing transgender people who died in the last year. Once at the second venue, an old church on the theater's campus, several speakers addressed the crowd, which had grown to over 80 people. The crowd moved from the church to the parish hall, where the inaugural Illumination Awards were presented. Nash himself was given Transgender Activist of the Year and Transgender Leader of the Year in the open voting, leading to two bouts of blushing, tears and his voice trembling under the weight of his emotion.

"I have to tell you that I was very humbled by the ovation given to me when Sue announced the awards," Nash said. "I don't think I deserved an ovation. I am just doing what needs to be done so our community will be safe, able to work with out fear of losing our jobs, and so people get educated, that's all."

Dear Members & Readers by Alexander Yoo

During this, the month of November, we memorialized our fallen trans sisters and brothers on the Trans Day of Remembrance. We mourn, but we also celebrate, affirm, and uphold our community. FTM International celebrates the gift of gender in all people, and every single Being on this earth has a unique gender, gender experience, and gender-giftedness, whether trans, non trans, queer, or not, transsexual, transgender, intersex, genderqueer, gender-gifted, or gender variant, in whatever way.

We recognize that the various gender communities have mixed feelings about our recent efforts toward an inclusive ENDA. An inclusive ENDA benefits not only transsexual/transgender individuals, but all people, because assumptions and oppression based on gender affect everyone, including those unaware of these invisible, and often, insidious forces that push and pull on them every day, people outside the trans and even the gay and lesbian communities, and even those who because of their fear and self-hatred perpetuate hateful acts, attitudes, and words toward us.

Nevertheless, our efforts showed the world, and more importantly, ourselves, that we have great strength, great power, and great significance, as a whole and as individuals, and as we grow in our awareness, we are exercising that power more and more, to the benefit of all humanity!

FTM International joins all of you in hoping for the day when every Being, everywhere, free from oppression, both external and from inside the psyche, based on gender, race, creed, color, ability, body type, physiology, and every other facet of existence that contributes to all of our individual and unique experiences, can walk freely in beauty and love.

Book Review: Moacyr Scliar. The Centaur in the Garden. University of Wisconsin Press (2003)

Tucker Kennedy Lieberman

A centaur, with great effort, becomes a man; later, he goes through a crisis and decides to become a centaur again; then he doesn't really know if he wants to be a centaur again or not; meanwhile, he meets a crazy sphinx who wants to transform him into a lion man! Ridiculous. Mythological delirium. (p. 175)

Brazilian author Moacyr Scliar wrote a fascinating novel in 1980 that happens to be a curiously illuminating fable for transsexual experience. The story opens with a Jewish family in rural Brazil that sees the arrival of a deformed son. The doctor's notes read:

As far down as the umbilical scar, a normal, well-built child. Below this point, the body is mulelike. ...haunches, shanks, pasterns, hooves, tail, everything resembling a horse. Penis particularly notable, being monstrously large for a newborn baby. A complex case. Radical surgery? Impossible. (p. 17) The doctor tells the centaur's father that being a centaur is neither a sickness nor a disease, but that there is no possible treatment.

From the very beginning, the centaur, called Guedali, is perceived as an intensely sexual being. Even the man who comes to circumcise the infant centaur is impressed. The centaur's father imagines his son will never masturbate because he will refuse to touch his own horse penis. He assumes his son will desire women, not horses, and that, unfortunately, no woman will ever desire him in return.

Guedali's parents cannot allow him to gallop around the countryside—the neighboring farmers will not understand, and they will surely make target practice of him. They keep him in hiding, and Guedali grows up acutely aware of his monstrosity. He reacts strongly to hearing about other people who have almost been put in his situation:

They [Nazi doctors] amputated arms and legs. They made strange transplants, uniting the upper half of a man with the lower half of a woman, or the hindquarters of a goat. Fortunately these atrocious operations caused the death of the patients, who expired as 5 human beings and were not obliged to live as monsters. (By this point my eyes would be brimming over with tears; my father thought I was moved by the description of the Nazi horrors.) (p. 45)

As Guedali grows to full horse-size, he crouches in a dark storeroom and becomes bookish. His early curiosity about sex—including an allusion to what may be homoerotic or inter-species desire—mirrors the confusion of many transsexuals who struggle to understand what to do with their atypical minds and bodies.

For years I had forced myself not to think about sex. I felt desire, of course, but following the advice of certain books, I tried to sublimate it. Before going to bed at night I would do dozens of exercises for the waist, legs, and arms. I would lift enormous weights, flagellate my body with wet towels. I would lie down exhausted, but even so I didn't manage to get to sleep; I seemed to hear sighs of pleasure, debauched laughter. I asked my father to buy me some sleeping pills at the drugstore. With five of them, I would manage to drop off, but then my dreams would torment me, dreams populated by women or mares, and in them I was now a normal man, now a complete horse, and to top it all off, it wasn't always a man going to bed with a woman, nor a stallion breeding a mare. I would wake up exhausted. Disgusted, but relieved, I would verify that I had ejaculated. Nature had done what it had to, and I was resigned. (p. 50)

Guedali's sexual confusion prompts him to examine his identity. Knowing nothing about what it means to be a centaur, other than living in a storeroom, he struggles to put himself in some sort of context and to learn more about his condition.

When, by chance, he runs into a female centaur, Tita, they fall in love at first sight, and return to the farm where Tita was raised. Tita comes up with the idea of asking a sex-reassignment surgeon if he would be able to transform a centaur into a human. The only surgeon they have heard of is in Morocco, so the centaurs leave Brazil and hide in the cargo hold of a ship to reach him. Later, the doctor reflects that he never would "have guessed that I would end up operating on mythological beings." (p. 163)

Guedali is apprehensive before his surgery. He thinks: The operation would be a success, the doctor would remove those growths—tails, hooves—as if they were warts, gigantic warts but none the less removable. And then I experienced a curious feeling: a tender melancholy, a sort of advance nostalgia. No, those weren't warts we had on our bodies. They were extensions of our being; we are centaurs on the inside, too, I thought... (p. 86)

Nevertheless, both Guedali and Tita undergo surgery, which leaves them human except for their hooves and the horsehide on their legs. Guedali finally feels able to bring Tita to meet his mother. He explains how they met each other as centaurs and together underwent the difficult transformation. Guedali's mother tolerates his live-in girlfriend, but she eventually admits her dismay that Tita is not Jewish.

But I have hooves, Mama! I would yell, losing my temper, what could be odder than a man with horses' hooves? And men with wooden legs, she would retort, aren't they people too? Don't give me any excuses, Guedali. You could have found yourself a nice Jewish girl. Hooves or no hooves, you could have found one. (p. 97)

Now that the surgery has enabled him to stop hiding in barns, fearing for his life, and to join human society, Guedali feels almost as if he is starting his life over. "I needed to make up for lost time—time on a little farm in Quatro Irmaos, in a circus, on a ranch near the southern border, in a Moroccan clinic; all useful experiences in their own right, but not directly connected with what I was now proposing to do." (p. 103)

As many transsexuals do, the ex-centaurs avoid the beach so no one glimpses the unusual parts of their bodies. They do not tell anyone about their past. They bear and raise two normal human children (twins, in a mythological allusion to the double-self).

But, years later, after a stressful domestic incident, Guedali undergoes an existential crisis, briefly thinks he might prefer to be transformed back into a centaur again, and even travels to see the Moroccan surgeon again. He decides not to return home to his wife and young sons "without first finding out who I was: a crippled centaur, deprived of its equine body? A human being trying to liberate himself from his fantasies?" (p. 188) Circumstances partly outside of his control prevent the surgical reversal, and he returns home, still human. Guedali and Tita begin to naturally shed their hooves, revealing human feet, which completes their transformation into humans (and contradicts Guedali's earlier musing that "we are centaurs on the inside, too").

Tita becomes bold enough to tell their human friends their life stories as centaurs, but only as a kind of joke, fictionalizing crucial details. Guedali understands why she does this: "The story is as ingeniously woven as a soap opera. With one single objective: to convince me that I never was a centaur." (p. 214) The author, Moacyr Scliar, probably did not intend a single, straightforward moral to this fable. But the examination of deviant sexuality as a thing of arresting beauty and the affirmation of life before and after reconstructive surgery nevertheless make this a relevant novel for transsexuals. |

Book Review: Transition and Beyond: Observations on Gender Identity by Reid Vanderburgh, MA (Portland, OR: Q Press, 2007)

Levi Alter

Reid is an FTM who has written a book of insightful clinical vignettes illustrating the stages of transition, post transition life, and therapeutic approaches that are respectful of clients and gender diversity.

He includes the entire masculine spectrum from butch to gender variant to post-transition FTMs who identify solely as men, of all orientations and walks of life. Anyone reading Reid's book can learn a lot about the FTM community and gain further insight into the the LGBT and MTF communities as well.

Reid includes warm memories of his own transition process, providing a role model to other therapists of an FTM who is able to use his own experience in a healthy and positive way as a resource to help his clients.

This is a book that any FTM would enjoy reading and feel comfortable giving to family members. Reid's book is especially strong in bridging the lesbian and FTM experiences because Reid is himself a bridge between the two communities in his own life, having been nurtured in the lesbian family before his transition and retaining his deep friendships from his chosen family. Reid writes movingly of the home he found in his women's chorus and includes lyrics from feminist singers in between chapters of his book that beautifully describe the feelings of finding one's way home on a gender journey, making it an ideal choice for book discussion groups.

Reid also includes coverage of partners and families of FTMs, of young FTM children and teens, of older FTMs, of FTMs with challenges and of FTMs struggling with fundamentalist religious backgrounds, which have not been addressed in other books to date. He includes valuable information and observations about transitioning and employment. Reid's positive, matter of fact and encouraging treatment of gender issues and transition presents a non-pathologizing model welcome in the professional works on FTM identity. Reid has supported FTM conferences such as FORGE and Gender Odyssey offering workshops, and is a member of FTMI, TYFA, WPATH and other groups active in building and strengthening FTM lives. James Green writes, "Most highly recommended!" |

FTMI Board Applications for Term
Beginning January 2008 and ending
December 31, 2010

Levi Alter

I am the President of FTMI. I have been the President, the Chairman of the Board and served as an officer on many Boards of Directors of nonprofits over three decades of community service. I was awarded the Icon Award for Lifetime Service to the transgender community at Trans Unity Pride. I will provide continuity with the past and current board. I will continue to establish and grow local chapters to empower FTMs with local community. I am also the President of the FTMI San Buenaventura Reed Erickson Chapter. I will continue organizational bridge building to fulfill FTMI's mission and vision and strategic plans, presenting educational and informational workshops about FTM topics, updating the FTM Resource Directory and website, answering phone calls and emails for assistance from all over the world, interacting with many other organizations, meetings etc. I consider my time serving the community an investment. In community there is strength. (FTMI President, for re-election to second term)

Alexander D. Roberto Jose Sims-Zaraspe-Yoo, MA, MFTI

I serve as the FTMI Treasurer, newsletter editor, and online community moderator for our announcements and discussion groups. My goals are to continue to produce the FTMI newsletter, manage other sources of support such as the FTMI online communities, education of others and within the FTM community. I have organized for Trans-Unity, GenderQueer Revolution, West Hollywood Transgender Taskforce, HIV Mental Health Taskforce, FTM Alliance and more. I am a gender therapist and frequently present educational and informational workshops about FTM topics. (FTMI Treasurer, for re-election to second term)

Connor Maddocks

My goals are: to help FTMI grow, to assist those across the country to start chapters in their area, to further the visibility of the FTM community and assist in any projects where needed. I have been a supporter of FTMI since 2002 when I first moved to the Bay area, I attended meetings in San Francisco and helped at the Pride booth. I moved to San Diego and in 2006 I helped create the San Diego FTMI Padraig Hall Chapter, and currently serve as President. I promote FTMI whenever and wherever I can to our community. I currently serve on the Board of San Diego Pride, am a member of The San Diego Community Leadership Council and for the past 4 years have been involved with San Diego TASC, (Transgender Advocacy and Services Center, formerly TCC) serving as Chair or Co-Chair for the past 3 years, working on local trans activities. I have been a member of the Center's Transgender Advisory Council, Area Manager for AIDS walk for the last two years. I have been a volunteer at SF Pride and San Diego Pride. I have served as chair or been on the committee for San Diego Day of Remembrance and Transgender Day of Empowerment for the past 3 years. I also give Transgender sensitivity/101 trainings at local colleges, universities, City Attorneys office and other places when requested. I am a yearly speaker for the UCSD Medical School 1st year students, quarterly trainer for the Center for Community Solutions Volunteer training, I have presented a workshop at the California NOW state conference. I led a workshop at the Transgender Leadership Conference in LA in 2007. I bring my passion for working with the FTM community, to help others achieve a successful transition, to advocate on behalf of our brothers and sisters. I am committed to our struggle for equal rights and protections, as well as educating the general public. Currently serving on the Board of San Diego Pride, and also currently on the board of TASC for the last 4 years, as Chair and Co-Chair. (San Diego, CA)

Cooper Lee Bombardier

I hope to help FTMI continue to expand and reach more of our diverse brothers, provide support, information and culture; and also to help FTMI connect more with my region, the Southwest. I am currently employed as the New Mexico Gay-Straight Alliance Network Coordinator. I have been active in the Queer and Trans communities for twenty years. I have experience in AIDS activism, harm reduction/ needle exchange, anti-war organizing, and have been an out and active artist and performer both as a butch dyke and as a transgender man. I have contacts with diverse queer communities around the country from traveling as a performer. I have artistic skills. I can certainly swing a hammer and weld things. I have worked in the trades for the past 10 years. I have diverse life experiences, and I have tried hard and I have made mistakes. And I have learned from them! I have been successful at fundraising not only for my own chest surgery but I also recently raised $3000.00 for Leukemia research by riding the Santa Fe Century (a 100-mile bike race). I believe in what FTMI does and would be proud to get others to support it. (Albuquerque, New Mexico)

Kalil Cohen

I want FTM International to be one of the first resources people think of when they have a question about legal issues, or they're wondering about access to healthcare, or they want to find out about FTM history. The website has an amazing array of resources, and I think that they are underutilized by our communities at the moment. I have been involved with many other LGBT organizations. Currently I am working on the Community Clinics Campaign (c3) working to provide trans specific health care. I am co-chair of the Public Relations/Funding working group of c3 and attend city/county meetings and advisory boards to lobby for funding. I am also an organizer with Trans Equality LA which is focused on bringing trans awareness and education to marriage equality campaigns. I helped organize "Tongue To Tongue" a conference that took place Sept 7-9 2007, a dialogue between and among queer women and trans people of color. I ran a workshop at Trans Unity Pride in June '07 on marriage equality and how this issue affects trans people. I also co-led two workshops at Models of Pride in October '07. I also screened a film at Translations, the trans film festival in Seattle Sept '07 in conjunction with Gender Odyssey. My film is a documentary entitled Queering Gender: A Look Beyond the Binary. In addition to these current LGBT organizations I work with, I was a mentor in the Queer Questioning and Allied Mentor Program. I am deeply rooted in trans people of color organizing. I love to get community members involved with trans organizations because I think it is one of the most powerful ways that we can empower ourselves, gain a sense of community which we may have lost when we came out, and realize the potential we have collectively to achieve justice and success in this world. (Bay Area and Los Angeles, CA)

Mike Dennis, MA Public Administration

Specialty: Budget and finance. I am also one of about 350 people in the USA and Canada to be Certified as a Public Finance Officer. I am currently Co-Chair of the West Hollywood Transgender Task Force, and Outreach

Person for Alpha Chapter of Tri-Ess. My strengths are financial management skills, collaboration abilities and community activism experience. I was on the national advisory board for GenderPac for three years. (West Hollywood, CA)

Aakash Kishore

My degree is in Black Studies. In addition to supporting the current work of FTMI, I hope to forge new opportunities in the work of FTMI. I am currently involved in SATRANG, an organization for South Asian LGBT individuals. My purpose of involvement on the board of SATRANG is to diversify its programming and membership. The second organization I'm involved with is API Equality-LA, a coalition that works within Asian and Pacific Islander communities for equal marriage rights and fair treatment of LGBT individuals and families. Through my paid work with API Equality-LA, I became connected with Trans Equality-LA. As a member of this organization I have helped to ensure that the Let California Ring campaign in California has been more accountable to transgender individuals and families. Finally, I was one of several organizers who brought to fruition Tongue to Tongue, a weekend-long trans-inclusive event focused on bringing together queer women of color for dialogue. I have spent several years doing anti-oppression trainings for high school-aged youth through the National Conference for Community and Justice (NCCJ) in Saint Louis, MO. Through this experience, I have developed strong facilitation skills and a keen sense of group dynamics that has aided me in improving the process of group work. Additionally, I have given several presentations to a variety of audiences on gender identity and its intersections with sexual orientation, race, class, and location. Finally, I have a number of contacts with community artists, many of whom are queer or trans people of color. Not only is recruitment vital to the success of FTMI, but continued visibility in the community is necessary in order to serve the community. In addition to active in-person recruitment at local events, I am interested in the use of online programs such as the facebook, friendster, and myspace which allow people to connect across the world, and which can be the first step in plugging people into our work on a more local level. (Saint Louis, MO and Los Angeles, CA)

Kimrey Lee

My goal is to educate and be educated to help other FTMs worldwide. I volunteer for many LGBT organizations and events and speak at many local colleges about being FTM. I have experience in management, logistics and worldwide people skills. In construction I deal with conflict resolution on a daily basis. I am a manager for 50+ people and 10 trades building structures. (High Desert, CA)

Paris Leisure

My goal is to help link trans people to resources they need and to help the formation of new groups and organizations that meet the needs of trans people including and with special emphasis on health. When I started transition, I noted how difficult it was to find local resources. So as I began talking to other trans people, I started collecting their resources and made lists. I shared info I collected in an effort to help meet the needs of the local trans people in the Inland Empire, CA. I have been helping supply resources continually since that time. Not only do I share the lists I collected, but I have also done web searches for specific needs for individuals, my home has been a place for trans people to share clothes. I have held support group meeting, started online groups. Helped put together a website, and I speak to individuals by phone or in person. I have a burden for problem solving and meeting the needs of the individuals. I have a particular interest in the health concerns of trans people. (Inland Empire, CA)

Genie Moore

I would like to contribute a cohesive voice, fostering collaboration, and encouragement, amongst board members. I would like to aid in outreach, and public awareness. I would support efforts to build relationships with other organizations within the rainbow community. I have volunteered for a variety of LGBT organizations. I have worked with The Trevor Project, and GLAAD—on committees, at events, and as the outreach representative. I have a background in media, events, fundraising, and nonprofits. Project Management in organizations ranging from $100,000 to $8 million. Logistics and 10 organization, dynamic strategy development and leadership of operations of large scale events (250 vendors/sponsors, 150 chili teams, Valvoline Mini-Indie race, Alaska Airlines Wine and Dine Festival, California State Fair 2005. Negotiated marketing and endorsement contracts with celebrities. Arranged television and radio interviews. Guided and coordinated 280 employees and volunteers. Negotiated contracts with vendors, sponsors and entertainment. Spearheaded community involvement promotion to include local community organizations. Created event concepts and attractions, generating public interest and resulting in television, newspaper, and radio coverage. Volunteer and community group recruitment, building a cohesive team environment. Overseeing more than 200 volunteers per event for The Trevor Project, Cracked Xmas Galas far exceeded projected revenue. (Sacramento, CA)

Lincoln Rose

I want to help FTMI expand their outreach and presence. I worked as a regional coordinator with the Triangle Foundation of Michigan prior to my gender transition. I coordinated a task force that got a new policy in place at the King County jail for proper treatment of transgender inmates. I am a member of the UFMCC Transgender Resource Team, and have done trans 101 workshops for local GSA's. I helped with tearing down and rebuilding at the Seattle LGBT community center before it opened. For three years, I have taught a class at Gay City University helping gay, bi and trans men recover from spiritual abuse. I helped launch the Cocoon Project, a growing Seattle nonprofit that works hands on with the trans homeless community. I am also the first openly transgender student to attend the School of Theology and Ministry at Seattle University. I can speak well to faith communities. I can connect people to resources in their area. (Seattle, Washington)

Reid Vanderburgh

My goal is to form strong coalitions with organizations such as PFLAG and TYFA (Trans Youth Family Advocates). I am a founding member of the Portland Women's Theater Company, Portland Lesbian Choir, and Bridges Vocal Ensemble. I am a current board member of Basic Rights Oregon. I am a singer with Confluence: Willamette Valley LGBT Chorus. I have been working within non-profit organizations (mostly arts organizations) for 25 years. I was also employed for 3.5 years by Equity Foundation, a Portland-based granting organization that funds regional queer organizations. (That was my "transition job.") I am a writer and educator, and a good speaker. Because of my work with Equity Foundation, I have some understanding of granting cycles, and the grants process. I am a published author and professional therapist, which gives me credibility on the "other side of the fence," so to speak. Mental health professionals who work with trans clients respect me. (Portland, Oregon)

C. Michael Woodward

I believe FTMI is poised to take an even larger role in the leadership of the overall trans and gender-diverse community, as well as the LGBT and allied communities. I am an expert in bridge-building with LGB and mainstream organizations to accomplish mutual goals. I have led the Southern Arizona Gender Alliance since 2003, first as Executive Director of the grassroots organization, and now as Program Coordinator under the organizational structure of the Wingspan LGBT Community Center. I am a charter member and past co-chair of the University of Arizona President's LGBT Advisory Council, and was appointed in 2007 to the Tucson Commission on GLBT Issues. I am a contributing writer specializing in transgender topics for Echelon magazine, and have published a number of essays, op-eds, and articles, and am a frequent media resource on trans and LGB issues locally. I'm also the lead singer in a trans and allies rock band called Too Much Information, which is very popular in Southern Arizona. I have strengths in building networks and collaborations, grant writing and development, program development, and most other areas of non-profit management. I am well-connected and respected within the LGBT and allied community, both locally and nationally. Prior to my transition, I served on the volunteer staff and/or Board of Women in the Arts, Inc./National Women's Music Festival for 14 years, retiring as Board President in 1997. (Tucson, Arizona)

FTM Illinois

Private Albert D. J. Cashier, assigned as Jennie Rodgers at birth, was a Civil War 13

soldier who served in the 95th Illinois Regiment. On August 3, 1862, a nineteen-year-old Irish immigrant named Albert D. J. Cashier, described as having a light complexion, blue eyes, and auburn hair, enlisted in the Ninety-fifth Illinois Infantry. Cashier served steadily until August 17, 1865, when the regiment was mustered out of the Federal army. Cashier participated in approximately forty battles and skirmishes in those long, hard four years. After the war, Cashier worked as a laborer, eventually drew a pension, and finally went to live in the Quincy, Illinois, Soldiers' Home. In 1913 a surgeon at the home discovered that Albert D. J. Cashier had female anatomy. A public disclosure of the finding touched off a storm of sensational newspaper stories, for Cashier had lived his entire adult life as a man. None of Cashier's former comrades-in-arms or the commandant at the Soldiers' Home ever questioned his gender, and after his anatomy was made public continued to refer to him as male. He died October 11, 1914.

An early Phil Donahue Show, (1982), featured Paul Walker of HBGDA and Mike and Marc Vittow, FTM twins from Illinois.

Aren Drehobl MSW

Aren Drehobl MSW worked for Hull House's Domestic Violence Court Advocacy, the Chicago Metropolitan Battered Women's Network and as GLSEN Chicago's Program Manager. He was awarded the TSELF Chicago Gender Society Leadership Award while he was a student at University of Chicago for his Master of Social Work.

Dane Travis is a Chicago high school teacher who transitioned on the job. He helped produce the True Spirit conventions.

Frank Miller, assigned as Frances Hook at birth, was an orphan who enlisted with his brother early in the war. He was twenty-two years old, of medium build, with hazel eyes and dark brown hair. Even though his brother was killed in action at Pittsburgh Landing, he continued service, probably in an Illinois infantry regiment. In early 1864, Confederates captured him near Florence, Alabama; he was shot in the thigh during a battle. While imprisoned in Atlanta, his captors realized he had female anatomy. After his exchange at Graysville, Georgia, on February 17, 1864, he was cared for in Union hospitals in Tennessee, then discharged and sent North in June.

Logan Grimes LCSW, assigned Mona at birth, is a Chicago native with 20+ years of experience in social services. Associated with the Lesbian Community Cancer Project since 2001, Logan leads cultural sensitivity training and educational workshops on transgender and lesbian health for community professionals and has led workshops at national FTM conferences.

BALLOT

Ballots must be returned postmarked by December 31st, 2007 to be valid. Return your ballot to FTM International, 601 Van Ness Ave. Suite E327 San Francisco, CA 94102 or email your vote to election@ftmi.org no later than midnight December 31st, 2007. The ByLaws of FTMInternational state that the board shall have up to 15 members. There are 13 nominees. You may vote for as many as you choose, including all.

Levi Alter

I will provide continuity with the past and current board, continue to establish and grow local chapters to empower FTMs with local community and organizational bridge building. (FTMI President, for re-election to second term)

Cooper Lee Bombardier

I hope to help FTMI continue to expand and reach more of our diverse brothers, provide support, information and culture; and also to help FTMI connect more with my region, the Southwest. (Albuquerque, New Mexico)

Kalil Cohen

I want FTM International to be one of the first resources people think of when they have a question about legal issues, or they're wondering about access to healthcare, or they want to find out about FTM history. I am deeply rooted in trans people of color organizing. (Bay Area and Los Angeles, CA)

Mike Dennis

I am Certified as a Public Finance Officer. My strengths are financial management skills, collaboration abilities and community activism experience. (West Hollywood, CA)

Aakash Kishore

My degree is in Black Studies. I hope to forge new opportunities in the work of FTMI in the use of online programs such as the facebook, friendster, and myspace which allow people to connect across the world. (Saint Lous, MO and Los Angeles, CA)

Kimrey Lee

My goal is to educate and help other FTMs worldwide. I have experience in management, logistics and worldwide people skills. (High Desert, CA)

Paris Leisure

My goal is to help link trans people to resources they need and to help the formation of new groups and organizations that meet the needs of trans people with special emphasis on health. (Inland Empire, CA)

Connor Maddocks

My goals are: to help FTMI grow, to assist those across the country to start chapters in their area, to further the visibility of the FTM community and our struggle for equal rights and protections, as well as educating the general public. (San Diego, CA)

Genie Moore

I would like to contribute a cohesive voice, fostering collaboration amongst board members, to aid in outreach and public awareness and support efforts to build relationships with other organizations within the rainbow community. (Sacramento, CA)

Lincoln Rose

I want to help FTMI expand their outreach and presence. (Seattle, Washington)

Reid Vanderburgh

My goal is to form strong coalitions with organizations such as PFLAG and TYFA (Trans Youth Family Advocates). (Portland, Oregon)

C. Michael Woodward

I believe FTMI is poised to take an even larger role in the leadership of the overall trans and gender-diverse community, as well as the LGBT and allied communities. I am an expert in bridge-building with LGB and mainstream organizations to accomplish mutual goals. (Tucson, Arizona)

Alexander D. Roberto Jose Sims-Zaraspe-Yoo

I will continue to produce the FTMI newsletter, manage other sources of support such as the FTMI online communities and provide educational presentations. (FTMI Treasurer, for re-election to second term)
